Mining Journalism Training for Journalists

Mining experts and senior journalists lectured for mining journalism

Menar Academy

Menar invests in being controlling and managing shareholder in private and listed companies and allocates capital to selected projects and companies actively involved in mining and resources. As a new generation company that turns knowledge into investment and production, it has a corporate culture which celebrates: Always being open to learn.

Continuously enhancing knowledge. Generously sharing that knowledge.

Regarding corporate social responsibility, Menar extends its investments beyond business by investing in people and community. Menar Academy encompasses Menar's in-house and public facilities for knowledge enhancement with the motto "LEARN, ENHANCE AND SHARE". It is the platform of Menar for investing in people in Menar's companies as well as in the mining sector.

Mining Journalism Training for Journalists

Mining is one of the most important sectors of the South African economy, while a strong media is imperative for sustainable mining. In order to ensure proper public scrutiny, the media needs to become acquainted with the mining sector jargon and the industry, at least at a basic level. In order to help the media, gain a better understanding of the mining sector in South Africa, the Menar Academy brought together the mining experts and senior journalists to train for mining journalism.

In the training moderated by Jacques DeBie and opened by Vuslat Bayoglu, the attendees had the opportunity to listen the lectures of Hulme Scholes, Mike Teke, Keith Rayner, Warren Thompson, Charlotte Mathews, Loftty Mmola and Brendan

Ryan. The speakers were gifted with a donation to Qhubeka in their names by Menar as their honorarium.

The training had 22 attendees from various institutions such as Creamer Media, CNBC Africa, Interact Media, Business

Day, Fin24, Jacaranda FM, Power FM, Kaya FM, Middelburg Observer, Thomson Reuters, Africa News Agency, BDTV, EWN, College Publishers, Pretoria Technical College, Tshwane University of Technology and University of Johannesburg.

The training took place on the 29th and 30th of August, at the Hyatt Regency in Rosebank with a site visit to an operating mine, Phalanndwa Colliery in Delmas, planned for the 6th of September.
